

FIRE-PROOF LIMITS.

One of the conservative measures which we hope to see passed by the Legislative Assembly, is an Act which is talked of to prescribe certain limits in the city of Honolulu within which none but fire-proof buildings shall be erected. Gradually, as the city grows compact in that portion where business is transacted, the interest of property holders prompts them to build of brick or stone to replace worn-out wooden structures; but as yet there is no legal obligation for one to do so, and thus an obstinate owner of a wooden shanty may continue to maintain a standing menace to the safety of his surrounding neighbors, who have no remedy at law.

It is hardly necessary to state, that in all well-regulated cities of the civilized world, restrictions of the nature spoken of exist. Indeed, in any considerable town in the New England States, all intending builders within certain limits must submit statement of plans, material to be used, &c., before permission is granted by the authorities to build. We learn that the proposed bill prescribes the limits within which none but fire-proof buildings may be hereafter erected, by a line running from the harbor front parallel with and distant one hundred feet West of Nuuanu Street, to a point one hundred feet mauka of Hotel Street, thence South on a line with Hotel to a point eighty feet beyond Fort, thence makai to the harbor front. It is not anticipated that any reasonable complaint can be made against the proposed law. And the subject of widening streets, to which we recently referred, is again suggested by this connection.

Few people pass through London without visiting Messrs. Maskelyne & Cook's wonderful entertainment at the Egyptian Hall, the true "home of mystery." There can be seen such sights as really require seeing to be believed. It would be hard to make a "down Wester" believe that it is possible to make an automaton play whist, poker, or lively tunes on the cornet; still harder to get him to put any faith in the doings of "Zoe," their "chef d'œuvre." This really marvellous automaton resembles in form a young lady elegantly dressed in Turkish garb, with large turban and wide trowsers. She is sitting cross-legged on a glass pedestal in form of something like a music stool. The audience are requested to go up and examine her, see there is no false bottom to the pedestal, and that as far as the eye can see all is fair and above board. At her right is an easel whereon a large oval shaped sheet of paper is affixed. On the word of command from her master, she lifts her hand, takes up her pen, and sketches the head of any one that the audience may wish. The writer of this has seen her draw capital portraits of Gen. Garfield, King Cetewayo, the Princess of Wales and many other notable personages. A few of her finest productions, with the signatures of Mr. Maskelyne attached, have found their way into the hands of Messrs. J. W. Robertson & Co. Among them are the celebrities already alluded to, also one of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone and one of Gen. Sir Garnet Wolseley.

LEGISLATIVE.

Tuesday, June 6.—Petitions received and referred:

From Makawao, that prisoners convicted in that district work out their sentences on the roads thereof.

From Honolulu, for free liquor; for the encouragement of immigration.

From Kaanapali, that taxes on real and personal property be reduced.

From Koloa, Kauai, that hospitals be provided on each island.

From Honolulu, in favor of the Ten Million Loan; and for a continuance of the Reciprocity Treaty.

A resolution, offered by Mr. Lili-kalani, was adopted, inquiring of the Minister of the Interior by what right a certain artist occupies a room in the Government House.

Mr. Kamakele gave notice of intention to introduce a bill licensing tailors.

Messrs. Aholo, Nakaleka and Kalua asked and obtained leave of absence for three days.

Mr. Gardner offered a resolution appropriating $300 for a breakwater at Kaupo, Maui.

Mr. Kaunamano gave notice of a bill to amend Chapter 7 of laws of 1880, respecting ancient genealogies. Also a bill to amend the law respecting immigration.

The order of the day was then taken up—second reading of an Act to declare the ownership in wild birds on waste lands. Referred to a select committee.

Second reading of an Act to amend the law of bankruptcy. Passed to be engrossed.

Second reading of an Act to abolish patents. Referred to a select committee, of which Mr. Bishop is Chairman.

Second reading of an Act to amend the butcher law. Referred to a select committee.

Second reading of an Act to consolidate and amend the law on taxation. Passed to engrossment. Adjourned.

ONE of the Honorable members for Honolulu made his mark as a statesman yesterday, while the taxation bill was under discussion, by moving that all railroad locomotives and cars be annually taxed one hundred dollars each, and supported his motion in a vehement speech. When the question was put, the statesman was found to be in a minority of one!

Prohibition vs Free Liquor.

HONOLULU, June 5, 1882.

MR. EDITOR:—The present Legislature is about to be called upon to decide a question which will largely sway the destiny of the Hawaiian race. I mean prohibition, or free liquor. In case the latter becomes a law, the natural consequence will be that every Chinese store and coffee shop in the Kingdom will sell intoxicants. And besides, the number of such shops will be greatly increased throughout the islands. The consequence will be that the unsuspecting natives will be allured from whatever habits of industry they may have, to lounging around the rum shops, thus neglecting their business and forming all the attendant vices. Idleness and dissipation, disease and poverty, will follow. Their homes will pass from their hands, and the proceeds will flow into the coffers of the rum vender. And what will the native have got for it? It would be well for our law-makers to remember the old adage, "Be sure you are right, and then go ahead." Where so much has been said about the perpetuation of the Hawaiian race, and so much money lavished to induce a cognate race to settle and recuperate the Hawaiian race, and where the question is yet unsettled whether with the greatest sanitary vigilance the race can be perpetuated,—I ask, is it safe to open the flood-gates of rum and opium upon this devoted people? Hawaiians are not a mercantile or manufacturing people, therefore they have nothing to gain financially, but all to lose.

If proofs were necessary, I would refer to the case of the Northwestern American Indians, where official statistics rendered to the United States Government show that the almost entire depopulation of that part of her territory, is directly traceable to the rum smugglers, many of which hailed from Hawaii. The barkentine Malay from New Castle N.S.W. brings a cargo of coal to Messrs C. Brewer & Co.,

A portly walrus was near being left behind yesterday; she arrived at the Likelike wharf just as the steamer was turning round, but making a leap from the wharf she caught hold of the stern of the steamer, and by the aid of the passengers, she was safely landed on board, amid the cheers of the crowd of spectators.

MR. EDITOR:—Oblige me with a brief space in your BULLETIN to speak of what I consider a public nuisance. It is the crowding of hacks at the entrance of Music Hall, at the conclusion of a performance, and the insolence of some of the drivers. A case in point occurred on the night of the performance of the Mendelssohn Club. A gentleman with his wife was trying to pick his way out of the maze of vehicles, when he was roughly accosted by one of these "Jehus," and peremptorily told to get out of the way, and otherwise roughly talked to and threatened. There should be a strict rule, and strictly observed, as to how near these hacks shall go to the entrance of a place of public resort; and otherwise, these high-toned hackmen should be taught civility.
